30 Volunteer Activities

(These activities are really non-award: I didn't receive anything from participating them. Perhaps nobody would ever know them if I didn't mention. But they are not non-rewarding. You might consider them insignificant, but I believe they are memorable and worthwhile. I haven't been any significant leader like other applicants: living in a backward ethnic region in West China makes those clubs and societies dreamlike. Nonetheless, I cherish my experiences growing up here, and I believe these activities will definitely become a previous chapter of my life.)

1. I often visit the underprivileged Yi villages and give them some aid.
2. I learn Yi language, Miao language and Li language to interact with the ethnic groups. I have established a bridge of communication and understanding among the Yi, the Bai, the Dai, the Hui, the Miao and Tibetans.
3. I celebrate festivals with ethnic groups: the Yi Torch Festival, the Dai Water-pouring Festival, and the Zhuang Horserace Meeting.
4. I learn to cook ethnic meals and teach ethnic families how to cook the Han dinners.
5. I read Chinese mythologies to ethnic children and teach them to speak Mandarin.
6. I have organized 20 classmates to visit the Old People House and perform for the old lonely people twice a week.
7. I am a representative of my school to send aid goods to nearby Yi schools.
8. I give ethnic students lessons in summer.
9. I publish lots of articles on international forums telling people about Chinese minorities.
10. I make audiotapes and CDs of ethnic music and VCDs of ethnic dances in order to educate the international community.
11. I collect old computers and distribute them to a Yi village and a Mosuo village and teach villagers how to use them.
12. I send piles of my children's books to illiterate ethnic children and teach them to write Chinese characters.
13. I teach woodcarving learned from the Yi group to the Han community and the international community.
14. I lead a team of 7 Yi children and 8 Hui children to clean streets.
15. I am the vice president of Eagle Project and organize a large number of students to perform for the community twice a week.
16. I spend time with disabled students in order to help them gain confidence.
17. I teach the old people English in my community every weekend.
18. I have built the Heart-to-Heart Line with the help of City Psych Center that provides free telephone services to students who meet problems.
19. I have run a Health Hub around my community to instruct people how to stay healthy.
20. I led 15 classmates to do free bicycle-washing during Winter Travel Festival.

21. I volunteered as a tour guide during Winter Travel Festival in my hometown this December.
22. I held an exhibit in the downtown displaying pictures of western foods and vehicles during Winter Travel Festival.
23. In November I volunteered to propagate 20/20 Movement (a display of creative inventions by Singaporean students) in Singapore as a Chinese visitor. (8 hours/day)
24. I volunteered to clean the house of an old Singaporean widow.
25. I built an organization of 40 students this summer to raise funds for drought-stricken areas in Sichuan.
26. In early 2006 I volunteered as a nurse for children at Xichang No.1 Hospital.
27. In summer 2005 I organized a team of 50 volunteer classmates to publicize protective measures against AIDS and Bird Flu.
28. In spring 2005 I led a team of classmates to plant trees by Anning River in Xichang City. I made good friends with local residents.
29. In spring 2003 I started to organize classmates to take good care of elderly people around the community and continued until spring 2005.
30. I hiked into mountains and shot lots of pictures of the ethnic people to publish in Guangzhou Morning Post.

Jobs taken to help defray living expenses:

1. Worked at an Indian restaurant; learned to make Indian cakes.
2. Sold software in Suntec City; learned some Cantonese.
3. Worked at an Islamic restaurant; learned to make Nasi Lemak.

14 Awarded Activities

1. In December 2006 I made a headline in 21st Century Teens (Issue 254) for my contribution to spreading Chinese ethnic culture to the world.
2. In September 2006 I was elected a translator for Liangshan Prefecture government. I was the very first out of 50,000 high school students to work as a formal translator for the local government. I received a praise letter from the mayor. (28hours/week)
3. In August 2006 I was invited to Beijing Teen Journalist Camp held by 21st Century because I won Young Journalist Award. I worked as an editor-in-chief for two weeks and won two T-shirts. (35hours/week)
4. In July 2006 I signed a contract and began working as a part-time art editor of Crazy English until July 2007 (the only nationwide English magazine in China). Every year thousands of readers apply for such a job and I am among the best five chosen this year. My job is to design cover art for each volume and collect pictures contributed by other students. (20 hours/week)
5. In June 2006 I started working as a part-time school correspondent for 21st Century teens (the only nationwide English newspaper in China). I competed with millions of high school students around China for such a job and I stood out. (20 hours/week)
6. In January 2006 I began to publish my albums of Chinese ethnic life and culture, available at <http://www.lulu.com/roseleng>.
7. In July 2006 I began to write, edit, and publish my own magazines, The Real China, on the Yi people's culture and life, available at <http://www.lulu.com/roseleng>.
8. In winter 2005 I attended the school field and track team. I was elected the team leader in December 2005. (17 hours/week)
9. In fall 2005 I won a medal in cheerleading.
10. In fall 2005 I enrolled in the school mathematics team. I led my team to first prize in the city math competition. (10 hours/week)
11. In summer 2005 I joined the Culture Camp for Teens in Beijing. I won Teenager with the Greatest Potential Award. (37 hours/week)
12. In May 2004 I began to work as a part-time editor of Boys and Girls (a nationwide teen magazine) until May 2005. I received a badge from the editor. (17 hours/week)
13. From 2004 to 2006, I was an official English interpreter for the Yi Torch Festival Opening Ceremony. I received three praise letters from Liangshan Prefecture Government.
14. In July 2004 I worked as a TV visual art assistant at Liangshan Television Station. The staff and I together made a video on anti-corruption during the First National Anti-corruption Cartoon Competition. It is rare in Liangshan to choose a teenager to participate in the work of a TV station. I mailed my cartoons to the staff and they called me. So our cooperation began. (35 hours/week)

18 Prizes and Honors

1. A national headline in 21st Century Teens, a national English newspaper under China Daily (Issue 253). The deputy director interviewed me about my magazines and wrote a long story. Now many students in China knows about Kun Leng. (December 2006)
2. Third prize in Experience UK 2006 held by British Council (July 2006). I was the very first one ever in Liangshan (out of 50,000 high school students) to take part in such a large competition and win a prize.)
3. Young Journalist Award by 21st Century Teens (July 2006). I won this award after working less than one month. It is rare to offer such an honor to a beginning journalist, given that I faced ten excellent correspondents from Shanghai and Beijing. )
